

MALBORK CASTLE

Malbork Castle is an outstanding example of the castles of the Teutonic Order, which evolved in the frontiers of Medieval Western Europe. It is a unique, perfectly planned architectural creation, with no equivalent in Gothic architecture. It is also the largest castle in the world by surface area, the largest brick building in Europe and a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

DESCRIPTION

